First aid is the most common merit badge a Cub Scout can earn. A Cub Scout Pack in Weymouth, Mass., decided to go beyond earning a first aid badge and instead earned money with first aid, raising hundreds of dollars with RightResponse.

A total of 26 Cub Scouts, from ages 6-11, wanted to raise funds for their scouting activities. The Pack Leader purchased RightResponse kits and challenged each Cub Scout to sell at least two kits.

The boys cinched up their kerchiefs and began selling. Out of the 26 boys, 10 boys each sold more than $200 in kits.

By the end of fundraiser, the Pack sold a total of $3,600 in RightResponse first aid kits. That translated into $1,800 for the scouts.

The Cub Scouts showed that when you choose RightResponse, be prepared to watch your fundraising income rise!

“We really liked the product and its association to the Cub Scout mission.”
